A FREE GUIDE FROM ROBERT HOWELL, DON'T QUIT YOUR JOB

Put Your Paycheck to Work: 5 Simple Steps

You don't have to quit your job to build something for your family. Stay all in at work: show up, do great work, and grow there. Then put a small slice of each paycheck to work buying something that pays you every month.

That "something" is called an asset. It sounds fancy, but it just means a thing you own that sends you money. A small rental house that brings in rent is one. A loan you make that pays you interest is another.

Why bother? A better retirement. Extra cash every month. A college fund for your kids.

My story, in short

Before 2020, I bought a rental house in Memphis for $10K, plus a $7K fix-up, with a $300 mortgage. Then on March 24, 2020, the Tokyo 2020 Olympics were delayed, and I went into survival mode. When my first rent check showed up, it gave me real momentum. It showed me my paycheck could do more than pay the bills.

The 5 Steps

1. Find your slice. Look at your paycheck and pick a small piece you can set aside every time. Start with an amount you won't miss. You can grow it later.
2. Pick one thing you could own that pays you monthly. Keep it simple. Choose one idea, like a small rental house or a loan that pays you interest, and focus on it.
3. Learn the basics. Read, ask questions, and talk to people who already own that kind of thing. Find out how the money comes in and what could go wrong.
4. Start small. Your first one doesn't have to be big. It just has to be real. A small first step teaches you more than years of waiting.
5. Keep going. Let that first monthly payment build your momentum. Keep putting your slice to work, one step at a time.

YOUR QUESTION FOR THIS WEEK

"What's one thing I could own that would pay me every month?"

Write your answer down. That's your starting point.
